for a "popular" book and one of this price, and there are passages that come as something of a shock, for instance the last paragraph in chapter 1, which starts "Naturally, we must not carry things too far and pretend, as people sometimes do, that identical twins are alike with respect to intelligence . . ." (This statement about identical twins is reversed later!) Footnotes where amplification is desired would avoid the tiresome necessity of repeatedly turning to notes at the end.

Population Policy in Mainland China by JOHN S. AIRD.

The writer considers that the abandonment of the campaign for birth control in China came about because the government leaders believed that their economic policy had achieved a great success. When this success proved elusive a period of uncertainty followed, and if the agricultural crops should also fail to come up to expectation some important new developments may ensue.

The Use of Inter-Marriage Statistics as an Index of Assimilation by CHARLES A. PRICE and JERZY ZUBRZYCKI.

Inter-marriage is a useful index of success in immigrant assimilation, but the methods of measuring it are often too crude. Here are given two more reliable ratios, which can be derived from data obtained in special surveys, and another that can be assessed from Australian official marriage statistics.

Some Fertility Attitudes among White Women in Johannesburg by EDWARD HIGGINS.

The results of a recent questionnaire in South Africa show considerable uniformity of view in regard to ideal family size and family planning but, as in other studies, different attitudes are found to be associated with different religious affiliations. Those who speak Afrikaans at home support the use of contraceptives less frequently than those who speak English.

Inferring Mobility Trends from a Single Study by PETER M. BLAU.

The assumptions upon which this may be done are explored and some predictions are made that can be tested with data from more than one study in the future.

the trends in the most recent years. They relate to the total, for each of the calendar years 1952-58, of the fertility rates for all durations of marriage; they show the numbers of first, second third, fourth . . . children born to a thousand women, married only once, according to age at marriage.

The figures show a widespread increase in births—except for the very largest families in the case of young marriages. Comparing these data with their general picture, the authors saw some reason to believe that the numbers of births in the early 1950s were if anything below average and also that the numbers in (and since) 1960 are higher than normal. If they are right, then a reduction in the annual number of births towards 900,000 a year may be expected before very long.

COMPARATIVE BIOCHEMISTRY AND PHYSIOLOGY

AN INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL

Editors: Dr. G. A. KERKUT, Department of Physiology and Biochemistry, University of Southampton, England. Professor BRADLEY T. SCHEER, Department of Biology, University of Oregon, Eugene, Oregon, U.S.A.

The results of original research on the biochemistry and physiology of animals—vertebrates and invertebrates—are published in this journal. Particular attention is paid to those papers that compare the biochemistry and physiology of various animals.

Papers that appeared in the last issue included:

JAMES W. CAMPBELL and THOMAS W. LEE—Ornithine transcarbamylase and arginase activity in flatworms; C. B. COWEY and GWYNETH PARRY—The non-protein nitrogenous constituents of the muscle of parr and smolt stages of the atlantic salmon (Salmo salar); G. A. KERKUT and G. A. COTTRELL—Acetylcholine and 5-hydroxytryptamine in the snail brain.

An inspection copy and full details of subscription rates sent on request.

THE PAYMENT OF THE GENERAL PRACTITIONER

Some European Comparisons

JAMES HOGARTH

This book is the first comparative study of the approach of different countries to the payment of general medical practitioners. A detailed description of the mechanics of each system is given, set against the background of the health services and history of health insurance in the country concerned.

Contents include: The British experience: Reimbursement of doctors' fees: Norway; Reimbursement of doctors' fees: France; Payment by fee-for-service: Switzerland; Holland: Payment by capitation fees; General medical services in the Soviet Union.

CONTROL OF CHROMATOPHORES

M. FINGERMAN, Department of Zoology, Tulane University, New Orleans

This monograph covers chromatophores and colour changes wherever they occur in the animal kingdom. The different types of controlling mechanisms are dealt with as well as the chemistry and sources of chromatophorotropins. No other volume, devoted to this subject has appeared since 1948.

AN OUTLINE OF DEVELOPMENTAL PHYSIOLOGY

SECOND REVISED EDITION

Chr. P. RAVEN, Professor of Zoology in the University of Utrecht

This second English edition presents, in a logically ordered sequence, the processes which appear to determine the development of an organism from the fertilised egg to the adult—the science which is termed experimental embryology.

"There exists large textbooks and compressed surveys, but few books that cover the ground so thoroughly in so small a space as this one. It is ideal for university students."—British Book News.

"An excellent translation of an admirable textbook of experimental embryology . . . the most satisfactory small textbook for the use of undergraduates. Written by a distinguished contributor to the field it is both authoritative and balanced . . . the style is very clear and the arrangement coherent and logical."—Annals of Applied Biology.

THE EUGENICS SOCIETY

OBJECTS:—To study the influences that may modify inborn human qualities; to formulate and support policies for developing these qualities to the utmost advantage; to promote research on eugenic problems; and to foster a responsible attitude to parenthood.

Conditions of Election to Fellowship.—Election to the Society's Fellowship is restricted to persons who have made, or might be expected to make, some contribution to eugenics or to the activities of the Society.

Fellows are elected by the Council, but no candidate shall be elected a Fellow unless he has been proposed and recommended by a Fellow.

Applications for Membership should be addressed to the Secretary, Eugenics Society, 69 Eccleston Square, London, S.W.1. Members receive the EUGENICS REVIEW free, are entitled to attend lectures, discussions and general meetings, and have the use of the library. Annual Subscription £2 2s. 0d. per. annum.

Those who are not members can subscribe for the EUGENICS REVIEW. Communications regarding subscriptions to the EUGENICS REVIEW should be addressed to the Secretary.

Editorial communications and Books and Periodicals for review should be addressed to the Editor.
